DOCUMENT RESUME

ED 451 918 PS 029 378

AUTHOR Pohlmann, Paulette

TITLE Children Are Listening: Conversations for Their Future.

Proceedings of the Statewide Forums on Abused, Neglected, and Abandoned Children (Tucson, Tempe, Prescott, and Glendale, Arizona, 1997).

INSTITUTION Children's Action Alliance, Phoenix, AZ.

SPONS AGENCY Margaret T. Morris Foundation, Prescott, AZ.

PUB DATE 1998-05-00

NOTE 73p.; Additional funding for this publication made by the

Casey Family Program and the Arizona Republic's Season for Sharing.

AVAILABLE FROM Children's Action Alliance, 4001 North 3rd Street, Suite

160, Phoenix, AZ 85012. Tel: 602-266-0707; Fax: 602-263-8792; e-mail: caa@azchildren.org; Web Site:

http://www.azchildren.org.

PUB TYPE Collected Works - Proceedings (021)

EDRS PRICE MF01/PC03 Plus Postage.

DESCRIPTORS Caseworkers; Change Strategies; *Child Abuse; *Child

Neglect; *Child Welfare; *Foster Care; Foster Children; Foster Family; Problems; *Program Effectiveness; Program

Improvement; Social Work; Social Workers

IDENTIFIERS *Arizona; Family Support

ABSTRACT

Seeking solutions for a troubled child welfare system, the Children's Action Alliance in Arizona held four forums throughout the state in 1997 at which participants were invited to give testimony on their experiences with the child welfare system--its positives and negatives--and their solutions for change. Along with their comments, this report includes feedback from a survey of court-appointed special advocates and Foster Care Review Board members and from a focus group of young adults in the foster care system. This synthesis presents participants' ideas on what works, what does not work, and what they recommend within the following areas used as guiding principles for the discussions: (1) provide services to families before the crisis escalates; (2) respond to serious cases in the right way and on time; (3) recruit more foster parents and support the ones in the system; (4) give caseworkers the support they need; and (5) give every waiting child a safe, nurturing, and permanent home. (EV)

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

HILDREN ARE LISTENING

Conversations for their future

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION Office of Educational Research and Improvement EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES INFORMATION

This document has been reproduced as received from the person or organization CENTER (ERIC) originating it.

 Minor changes have been made to improve reproduction quality. Points of view or opinions stated in this document do not necessarily represent official OERI position or policy.

Statewide Forums on Abused, Neglected, and Abandoned Proceedings of the Children

PERMISSION TO REPRODUCE AND DISSEMINATE THIS MATERIAL HAS BEEN GRANTED BY

Naimark

TO THE EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES INFORMATION CENTER (ERIC)

CHILDREN'S ACTION ALLIANCE

May 1998

ED 421 918

2 E 6

About Children's Action Alliance

CAA is a private, non-profit, research, policy, and advocacy organization dedicated to promoting the well-being of all of Arizona's children and families.

Through research, publications, media campaigns, and advocacy, we act as a strong and independent voice for children who cannot speak for themselves.

We work to educate the public and policymakers about children's needs and to promote effective strategies to improve the lives of children and their families. CAA's Board of Directors and supporters believe that the quality of life of our state's children is the single most important determinant of Arizona's future.

CAA is supported by foundations, corporate grants, and individual contributions.

© Copyright May 1998 Children's Action Alliance Any or all portions of this report may be reproduced without prior permission, provided the source is cited as Children's Action Alliance, 4001 North 3rd Street, Suite 160, Phoenix, Arizona 85012.

ល

...

Our special thanks to the organizations who made the forums and this publication possible

The Margaret T. Morris Foundation

The Casey Famíly Program The Arizona Republic's Season for Sharing

We also thank

Anne Thompson of Oryx Press for her generous assistance in editing this publication

and

Paulette Pohlmann of The Write Source for her compelling writing and layout design.

(D)

problems or have reached the juvenile court system. We would and that parents love their children; and that if they maltreat meet their needs. We should be building a system of care that being played with diagnoses over whether or not a child needs in any redesign or rework of what we're doing with children is "The child welfare system is not based on any set of acceptnot have children treated as criminals even though they have services. We would be looking to find what our system can do not been charged with crimes. And we would not have games dren getting into the mental health system as they are today, able values. The values that should be working in a familycentered system are that most children belong with families; to support that child to grow up in a family in a way that is productive. I think the most important thing we need to do is based on values. If we did that, we would not have chilthey were the enemy instead of part of the team. We would not have families treated by our mental health system as if their children, it is an expression of our society's failure to [which is] only when they present with serious behavioral to start with a set of values."

Attorney

©

* 4

ERIC Founded by ERIC

Arizonans for Kids

AZ for Kids is a citizen partnership with Children's Action Alliance dedicated to advocating for systemic reforms to ensure that Arizona's at-risk, abused, neglected, and abandoned children are afforded safe, nurturing, and permanent homes. Our goals include developing and implementing a model for comprehensive child welfare system reform. We intend to achieve our objectives by

- ➤ understanding what the community perceives as major issues affecting the child welfare system,
- conducting research and analysis to lay the foundation for sound policy development,
- identifying benchmarks for progress and outcome measures for Arizona's child welfare system, and
- working with policymakers to implement systemic reforms.

AZ for Kids seeks to mobilize citizens to be a powerful, articulate and outspoken force to advocate for systemic reform:

- ✓ by informing citizens around the state of the work of AZ for Kids,
- through public events, the news media and publications, which will increase citizen awareness of system problems and potential solutions to providing safe, nurturing and permanent homes for Arizona's abused, neglected, and abandoned children,

- ✓ by building consensus among citizens concerned about these vulnerable children as to directions, priorities, and timelines for reform,
- ✓ by recruiting and encouraging wellinformed constituents to advance the model for child welfare system reform with policymakers.

AZ for Kids adheres to the following guiding principles:

Leadership — AZ for Kids provides the leadership to make open, inclusive and informed deci-

 ${\it Community\ Focus-AZ}$ for Kids promotes the highest possible degree of citizen involvement.

Cultural Inclusiveness — AZ for Kids is culturally inclusive and responds to the interests and needs of Arizona's diverse populations.

Accountability — AZ for Kids promotes accountability by the systems that serve Arizona's most vulnerable children.

Quality — AZ for Kids promotes effective and efficient services and systems that focus on providing safe, nurturing and permanent homes for at-risk and abused, neglected and abandoned children.

Managing By Facts — AZ for Kids seeks to obtain all available fact-based information and research to support system reform recommendations.

Children's Action Alliance

Child welfare forums

ts positives, its negatives, and their solu-Attendees were invited to give testimony, It was determined that an important either orally or in writing, on their expereform would be to gather public input. and, if necessary, seek clarification. The facilitator, were assembled at each locafucson, Tempe, Prescott, and Glendale. long and varied histories as both volunfour forums were held in late 1997 in tion in order to witness the testimony panelists were selected based on their teers and professionals with the child rience with the child welfare system tions for change. Panels, guided by a first step in developing a model for welfare system in Arizona. The forums were attended by hundreds of interested citizens who drew a fairly clear picture of the problems experienced by people who must use or interact with the child welfare system, or work as professionals within the system. They also brought attention to a variety of programs and community-based efforts that have experienced success at meeting the needs of these vulnerable children.

cially pertinent as we work toward develgram Youth Advisory Board who are curthat hearing from individuals actually in rent young adults in foster care. We felt the child welfare system would be espeducted a survey of court-appointed spesources of data and feedback that were focus group in February 1998 for mem-June 1997 Statewide CASA/FCRB Skills ows. We also facilitated a young adult cial advocates (CASA) and Foster Care Training Conference. Their comments were integrated into the text that folbers of the Arizona Young Adult Proment. Children's Action Alliance con-Review Board (FCRB) members at the used in this synthesis of public com-There are two other important

TO JOIN AZ FOR KIDS OR OBTAIN MORE INFORMATION:

- call Children's Action Alliance,
 (602) 266-0707 in Phoenix, or
- call Children's Action Alliance,
 (520) 795-4199 in Tucson, or
- visit our|website at www.azchildren.org

oping a model for system reform.

This project is directed by five guiding principles adapted from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation initiative called "Families for Kids Who Wait." These principles were articulated to the forum audiences and set the context for our discussions. They are to

- Provide services to families before the crisis escalates.
- 2. Respond to serious cases in the right way and on time.
- Recruit more foster parents and support the ones we have.
- 4. Give caseworkers the support they need.

5. Give every waiting child a safe, nurturing and permanent home.

These principles will also serve as the foundation for organizing the public input we have gathered over the past

(2)

4.9C

This synthesis attempts to capture the community perception of the successes and failures of the child welfare system — and ideas for reform that merit further development. What it cannot capture in its translation, however, were the faces and intense feelings that reflect the everyday drama of children who suffer, who lose their innocence, their childhoods, and their families.

We owe our gratitude to everyone who had the courage to speak out. We also owe them our resolve to see that their words were not spoken in vain. Together, we can and will make a difference for Arizona's abused, neglected, and abandoned children.

Table of Contents

1	2	4	8	12	16	20
spj	orums	Provide Services To Families Beforethe Crisis Escalates	Respond to Serious Cases in the	Recruit More Foster Parents andSupport the Ones We Have	Give Caseworkers the Support They Need	Give Every Waiting Child a Safe, Nurturing and Permanent Home
ALIZOIIAIIS IOF NIUS	Child Welfare Forums	Provide Services To the Crisis Escalates	Respond to Serious Case Right Way and On Time	Recruit More Foster Parent Support the Ones We Have	Give Caseworke	Give Every Waiting Ch and Permanent Home

Provide services to families before the tors such as health, adequacy of income, Arizona ranks 42nd in the nation in indicators of child well-being — indicaeducational attainment, and the likelihood of being arrested our explosive growth ranking coupled with for crime. This poor makes our need to strengthen families and nurture children even more urgent.

WORKS

vices before a crisis happened. Examples work with families shared heartwarming most effective way to do that is through prevention and early intervention proenough to get guidance and support ser tion, professionals and volunteers who grams. At every forum without excep-There is wide agreement that the troubled parents who were fortunate successes they have witnessed from

Healthy Families provides volun-

or neglect. It is now in over 20 communihave been identified as at-risk for abuse tary family support and parenting skills for up to five years to new parents who ties in Arizona.

gram funds support more · Family Support and Family Preservation Prothan 15 programs state-and effective. The federal funds that supents, and 24-hour crisis intervention procollaborations, that have been rewarding grams. These programs are held in high regard because they have "forced" new wide, such as community-based family resource centers, services to teen parport these programs were renewed in November 1997.

personal support program that contacts birth and offers continuous support for · First Steps is an educational and parents of newborns in the hospital at the first three months. There were 50,000 families served in Arizona in 1996 at an average cost of $20 per family.

· Parents Anonymous is a voluntary raining on a walk-in basis. It costs about peer support, parenting classes, in-home visitation, counseling, and job readiness work in Maricopa County where parents who are stressed with their children can call for support, guidance, and referrals to community resources. They handled statewide program that offers parental $300 a year per family. Family Lifeline, based 24-hour telephone support netone of PA's programs, is a volunteer-6,000 calls last year.

grams statewide, serving 10 of 15 counties abuse in their local communities, particalarly how to keep families from becomng isolated. Currently, there are 17 prodetermine the best way to prevent child · Regional Child Abuse Prevention Councils are grass-roots, communitybased, volunteer-driven groups that neglectful beginnings. Children with emotional disorders or intellectual deficits are expensive and overwhelming for schools, dangerous for society, and bankrupting the taxpayer. Prevention saves Associate director, private social services agency "There is a growing body of evidence that many children may never recover from their self-esteem, neighborhoods, and money."

crisis escalates

with three more counties in the planning stages. The average budget is $5,000 per year per council.

services for three- and four-year-olds from at-risk families. Operating since 1965, the family development program that assists families in learning good parenting skills Arizona. It is a comprehensive child and child care and comprehensive preschool and collaborates with other agencies to program serves over 17,000 families in · Head Start provides high quality reduce child abuse and neglect.

handle crisis intervention and steer callers · Childhelp USA is a privately funded opened Child Advocacy Center in Phoenix. approximately 280 calls per day. They are to resources in their local area. They take national child abuse hotline designed to also a major funder of the soon-to-benational organization with a toll-free ter, a collaborative project among 14 East · East Valley Family Resource Censitional housing, job training, shelter, and rals for services such as counseling, tranping" for families who are seeking refer-Valley agencies, offers "one-stop shopparenting classes.

provides a variety of prevention programs and family support programs to new par-· Prescott Family Resource Center Healthy Families for the past five years. ents. They have been a pilot site for at the Tucson Center for Women and Chil-· TCWC Children's Program, offered sions. They served nearly 600 children in and learn non-violent conflict resolution protect themselves from family violence through peer groups and individual sesdren shelter, gives children the tools to fiscal year 1996.

ships and parental bonding, thus reducing trains mothers in child development and nutrition resulting in stronger relationchild abuse. They also help moms with · Yavapai County WIC Program referrals for problems in housing, domestic violence, and job training. Although there are several model prevention and early intervention programs neglect, it is important to note that they for families at risk of child abuse and are not coordinated as a sysng desperate needs and they gaps in services still exist for em of care. They are primarfrom human kindness meetexist now as a patchwork of through a seamless delivery most children and families, of services is still a distant programs rather than as a lly programs that sprang systemic response. Huge and a continuum of care

"Armed with the knowledge of what their child needs, most Healthy Families parents became interchildren were guided to parent differently than they had been. This program works. We need to have ested in learning ways to help their children improve. Parents who had been abused or neglected as the courage to do what is right and expand it!"

- Director, family support services agency

Waiting until crises develop doesn't work. The way our system operates now, CPS caseworkers close the vast majority of investigated cases — cases with valid findings of abuse or neglect — with no further follow-up.

until children are in ensures that nothwhich, by default, clear and present danger, damaged ing will be done That is a policy beyond repair, in the hospital, or dead.

mental. Aside from human suffering, it is been too severe or too longstanding. And the real dollars needed to move the child becoming clear that many children can-The costs of that policy are monunot recover if the abuse or neglect has ceedings, foster care, therapy, clothing, into state care - shelters, court proingly a cause for child abuse and neglect. clear that substance abuse and domesfare issues. Substance abuse is increastic violence in families are child wel-Forum participants also made it funding, the treatment involved a drug abusbecause of geographi-One CPS caseworker claimed that 85% to cal limitations and 90% of her cases ing parent, but,

be severed. If there is no treatment availfoster care while the parent continues to home or before the parental rights can is not available even when parents are able, the child languishes in shelter or workers and law enforcement officers available, and offered or rejected, she be unable to care for the child. Social from all over the state reiterated this willing to enroll. Treatment must be pointed out, before the child can go

We were also told that many children Although children who are members of a already in the system in order to prevent he abused/abuser cycle becoming a pernot technically part of the child welfare amily caught in domestic violence are who witness domestic violence exhibit actually physically abused themselves. the same disorders as those who are system, these children need services every bit as much as other children manent part of their psyche.

ake into account these vulnerable mothassist battered women testified that any reform of the child welfare system must ers and their children and provide early dren from the foster care system if posintervention funds that will divert chil-Several directors of shelters that

"There simply are not substance abuse services that exist in this state, Maricopa County, Pima intervention had occurred when the child's family first presented with the substance abuse prob-County, in anywhere near the number to meet the needs of these families. In case after case, if lem, there may not have been the tragedy that occurred for their children later on."

and

"Domestic violence is not a law enforcement problem. It's not a cPs problem. It's not a criminal justice problem. It's a problem for all of us, all of us working together."

County sheriff's department officer

"We are now beginning to see the effects of 20 years of inadequate services for citizens who are abusing drugs. The effects result in children born exposed to drugs and alcohol, children whith significant emotional and behavioral needs and pavents whose parental rights are being terminated due to their inability to parent because of drug abuse and mental health issues."

Juvenile Court Commissioner

THE PEOPLE RECOMMEND

- Base public policy upon the principles of prevention and early intervention.
- Shift more funding to prevention and early intervention programs to prevent more costly interventions later.
- Develop a continuum of support and care for all children and families starting at birth.
- Fully fund prevention programs such as Healthy Families, Family Resource Centers, and First Steps so that they are integral parts of the statewide child welfare system.
- Expand the availability of substance abuse treatment programs for families at-risk of child abuse and neglect.
- ✓ Increase domestic violence prevention and shelter programs to support families in need.
- Provide services to all families with valid findings of abuse or neglect prior to the need for foster care.

Establish Regional Prevention Councils in each county with a - full-time coordinator.

 Improve the links between public child support investigators and collectors and other workers in the child welfare system,
- Provide more funding for school counselors.

especially for single moms who are struggling to meet their kids'

✓ Teach real life skills in the schools such as budgeting, meal planning, child development — things all people need to build strong and healthy families.

Respond to serious cases in the right

Collaborations to handle complex cases of child abuse and neglect, such as through multidisciplinary teams and Child Advocacy Centers, appear to be positive steps for handling some very difficult cases. Arizona's juvenile courts have also made giant strides toward expediting child welfare cases and increasing the options for resolution. The following are examples of programs described in forum testimony that are experiencing success.

• Child Advocacy Centers — now established in Tucson and Mesa, with one planned for Phoenix and others being considered in Prescott and Flagstaff, these facilities house multidisciplinary teams of professionals to investigate, document, and review cases of abuse and neglect. Referrals come from both the public and private sectors. CPS, law enforcement, physicians, city and county attorneys, school officials, mental health providers, and other appropriate parties come together to conduct a single videotaped forensic interview of a child

WHAT Medical evaluations for physical and sexual abuse are conducted there also. The child is spared having to describe his or her abuse experience repeatedly and services to the family are speeded up considerably.

ed in Pima County Juvenile Court, this is an effort to improve the timeliness and substantiveness of judicial proceedings in cases involving abused, neglected, and abandoned children. The primary focus of this pilot effort has been to "frontload" the court process. Front-loading refers to setting in place procedures to ensure that all parties to court proceedings begin actively participating at the earliest point possible and doing all they can to minimize the length of time children remain in temporary placement and that their families remain involved with the court. The results have been more than promising.

The first meaningful hearing for parents is reduced from 90 days to 5 days. During the five-day period after the child is removed, the attorneys meet with the parents they represent and the child's attorney meets with the child. There is a pre-hearing conference where everyone who has an interest in the child is invited including parents, relatives, friends, the CPS intake and ongoing caseworkers, attorneys, the assistant attorney general, teachers, and any other adults who actively participate in the life of the child. The parents are told up front that if they do not cooperate, their parental

"This [the Model Court Project] is a child-centered approach, which I fromly believe in.. Juvenile Court Judge a lot of delays have come from people who tried to be too fair to the adults at the expense of the

ay and on time

rights might be terminated.

Pima County Juvenile Court Judge testified for the child and parents were being delivbut warned that "it doesn't do any good to at the hearing. The court determination of to the tremendous benefits of the project relative care much more quickly. Services ered at a faster rate. A bill will be considthe formal legal procedure for dependent average of 112 days. Children were being returned to their families or moving into rate. Nearly 98% of the parents appeared whether there had been abuse or neglect which will make the Model Court Project ered during the 1998 legislative session children and their families statewide. A was reduced to 29 days from an earlier pilot, there was a remarkable response During the evaluation phase of the response unless services and treatment funds are in place to to help the family push the judicial system into quicker correct their problems."

· "Wraparound" — coordinated by the Yavapai County Juvenile Court, a multidistion, and behavioral health come together family whose problems have crossed over jurisdictional lines. Rather than expecting a single agency to take the lead, representatives of all agencies who are interacting to create a plan for the child and his/her ciplinary team from CPS, juvenile probawith the family discuss what resources they need to become whole again.

collaborative project between the Glendale always the first and best response to noncases. A liaison from both Glendale Police . The Community Links Project — ${\bf a}$ ognizing that criminal prosecution is not Services, it is the result of the police reclife-threatening child abuse and neglect Police Department and Child Protective and CPS respond to all reports of child abuse and neglect within Glendale city community resources (e.g., parentestablish health, safety, and stabiling classes, emergency food and anger control, substance abuse reatment) in an attempt to relimits. The family is guided to clothing) and counseling (e.g., cial system into quicker response unless services the family correct their are in place to to help good to push the judiand treatment funds "It doesn't do any problems."

Juvenile Court Judge

1997 Child Welfare Forums

forward more rapidly."

Advocacy Center what a difference it makes in moving

many, many years and I'm just amazed in the year

"I've been working with child abuse cases for and a half we have been doing cases in this Child

Respond to serious cases in the right way and on time

Not all reports of child abuse are investigated. From July 1996 through June 1997, 6,000 reports of child abuse and neglect — representing over 13,000 children — were not investigated by CPS. This number was quadruple the number of uninvestigated reports from the previous year.

MOESK'T WORK

by CPS. These families might be fund-referred to services in the community or Family Builders, a new community response program funded by the state beginning in January 1998, will handle the potential abuse and neglect reports from Maricopa and Pima Counties. This is good. It is hoped that this newly passed legislation and appropriation will allow for 100% response to reports of abuse and neglect. However, Family Builders' success is dependent on a parent's voluntary cooperation and if the number of reports increase dramatically again this year or in years to come, we might find ourselves again with a large number of uninvestigated reports.

Three-fourths of the investigated reports.

Child maltreatment were closed after investigation without any follow-up referred to services in the community or within another division of DES, but no one knows whether the services were received by the family or if they were successful in reducing risk to the child. We know that these families are troubled and without some sort of guidance, the problems will likely escalate. Forum participants, many of whom work with CPS families, were very concerned about this lack of follow-up.

The juvenile justice system becomes the repository of problems delayed or ignored in the child welfare system. Nearly one-third of the children in the juvenile justice system have histories with CPS. Judges who testified at the forums reported that many of the kids who are arrested come from families where the parents are drug users, substance abusers, and have in effect abandoned their children. The system has created a track where these kids get processed through juvenile justice rather than as dependents who have been neglected and abandoned.

The Director of Juvenile Court Services in Yavapai County testified that he had several kids sitting in detention at that moment who had been abandoned, neglected, and abused. He pointed out that it is extremely difficult to decide what the underlying issue is, dependency or delinquency. The question they re-ents and children at-risk must continue for a minimum of three months to insure child safety and - Executive director, social services agency "Follow-up services for families and children in crisis is absolutely critical. Contact with parresolution of family problems. The goal should be to keep children and families from becoming involved in costly state child protective systems."

Children's Action Alliance

1997 Child Welfare Forums

18 different involvements with Child Protective Services, yet noth "We get cases in which we have a family that has a history of ing has been done to correct the situation."

Police department detective

peatedly face is "should probation take the lead or CPS?"

where they really need services. It requires a CPS investigation, a dependency petition, and a court process to determine whether Once a child is in the juvenile justice system, it is nearly impossible to retrack them back into the child welfare system the child is actually still dependent. It's not a matter of willingness but rather a lack of policy.

THE PEOPLE RECOMMEND

- Focus on in-home services at the front end so that foster care placement can be prevented if at all possible.
- vices. All valid cases should be open a minimum of three months with conquently require on-going case management, counseling, or parent aide ser- Connect CPS investigation with follow-up. Even situations that do not involve removals, dependency petitions and foster care placements fretinuous follow-up occurring.
- pediatric specialists who can cross-train each other in their own expertise and open up lines of cooperation between police and medical responders Create a statewide consortium of law enforcement specialists and to child abuse.
- Expand Child Advocacy Centers statewide.
- Expand the Model Court Project statewide.
- Consider amending the legal definition of dependency to allow a juverepeated delinquent behavior. The court should be able to determine if the nile court judge to order investigation of the family system when there is child has suffered abuse so he or she can then be tracked into the child welfare system rather than juvenile justice.
- Promote and use juvenile court mediation services that are available at no cost to families.
- Bring CASAs into dependency cases immediately after the initial court
- When severe substance abuse is an issue, the court should demand inpatient treatment at the onset. If the parent refuses, parental rights should

Children's Action Alliance

Recruit more foster parents and support

At this time, there are approximately 6,000 children in foster care in Arizona. That's an increase of 29% since October 1995. There are only 1,900 licensed foster homes bounded That's ter homes, however. That's an increase of only 3% during the same period.

Recruitment efforts are not keeping pace with the variable.

Signing on as a foster parent today is far different from the past. The abused children and their families who are coming into the system are more troubled. It takes courage, commitment, and extreme patience to take the necessary steps to be licensed for foster care. The licensing process is difficult and reimbursement rates are insufficient. Caseworkers are too busy to make or keep their appointments. Training is minimal. In short, the system is unfriendly — to some, even

Although the list is short, there are some unique local initiatives that have set the pace for recruiting and better supporting our foster and adoptive parents.

• The Tucson
Foster/Adoptive Home Recruitment Council —
this 12-year-old-collaboration of ten agencies recruits foster/adoptive families. It is privately funded and believes that finding families for children should be treated like a business. They use advertising as a strategy. They recently created a statewide recruiters committee with a toll-free foster care/adoption line, statewide logo, and a marketing and advertising plan.

• The Yavapai County Foster Parents Support System Pilot Project — Because children in foster care are more emotionally disturbed than in the past, families are generally ill-equipped to deal with the vast set of problems that come along with the foster child. Through a local grant, a foster parent support group was formed. Parents meet once a month. Quality child care is available. Refreshments and fun are built in. They have established a Web page with extensive links to community resources for families and children and a confidential foster parent discussion forum on the Internet. Their address is http://www.mwaz.com/shelter.

community Advisory Board— this volunteer group in Prescott has realized that foster parents need much greater support. Through publicity and personal requests, they are enlisting local service clubs to sponsor at least one activity a month for foster kids, which offers them wholesome recreational opportunities, a chance to bond with their peers, and respite for their foster parents. They have also had considerable success recruiting new foster parents.

ter care. That could be prevented if they were given more training or a warning of what to expect Foster care review board member "We feel that there are cases where the foster parents have not been made fully aware of what to expect from children who have been abused and perhaps that accounts for the turnover in fosfrom these abused children."

1997 Child Welfare Forums

600

the ones we have

Arizona's child welfare system is out special advocates, judges, program direcof touch with its foster parents. Foster parents, caseworkers, court-appointed tors, attorneys, police stream to forum microand formal support for officers made a steady case for more training phones to make the stories of undelivered promises for respite parents an occasional break), inadequate something their foster child desperately or inappropriate mental health services, breakdowns in communication, literally having to go to war with the system for care (a licensed caregiver to give foster after another, they told foster parents. One sources of professional care but are left to fend for themselves through the system. Many foster parents are faced with caring for children who need multiple are difficult to obtain, virtually nonexistent, services for the child rates are inadequate, support systems are Although foster parents are supposed to adoption and severmonth, many report that is not the case. have caseworker contact at least once a According to testimony, reimbursement foster parents are rarely prepared for the ficult processes, and challenges that these children bring with ance are long and dif-

and worse, nearly abandons them once the talk to who understands their frustrations. child is in place. The system as it operates today has lost touch with the fact that foster parents are the foundation of a system Many foster parents, out of necessity, have begun to find each other and network. They often just need someone to The system has failed to prepare them that works.

ously disturbed, often requiring more time cult in an era where many families require lood, clothing, shelter, transportation and makes recruitment of foster parents diffitwo incomes to make ends meet. The rate Foster care reimbursement rates are too low. Taking into account the costs of ment rate covers only 53% of the costs of personal care, the foster care reimbursealso does not acknowledge that the chiland effort on the part of foster parents. raising a child. This financial deficiency dren entering the system are more serithem at great disadvantage, financially and children placed by CPS are in relative care, otherwise, in dealing with the child's emoalmost no financial provision for relatives tional and physical needs. Arizona makes Relatives who take in displaced chil than foster parents. At least 25% of the dren are treated with even less regard but most relatives are guardians rather than licensed foster parents. This puts the only subsidy she got from foster care was $300 a year for a clothing allowance. We all know that $300 is not going to raise a kid in a year."

"A woman took in her five grandchildren who would otherwise be in the foster care system, and

Foster parent

Children's Action Alliance

Children's Action Alliance

Recruit more foster parents and support the ones we have

who have stepped into the primary caretaker role. For children who cannot be freed for adoption, there is no solution to provide permanency for children in the care of relatives.

of working with CPS, schools, and therapy ing with troubled children in an unfriendly system. In Arizona, pre-service training There is minimal training for foster for foster parents is 12 hours. Foster parnator, "Foster parents tend to be normal, years or more to learn the 'ins and outs' are raising their own children. They are not prepared for the challenges of workparents. According to a shelter coordimiddle-class people who have raised or services. By the time they have learned reported, "they've already reached the burn-out point and are ready to quit." ents generally agree that it takes two their rights within the system," she

There is little sensitivity to cultural diversity for either children or adults impacted by the child welfare system. Because children of color are over-represented in the system, there is a great deal of multicultural blending. Foster children themselves reported cultural insensitivities throughout their experience in the system, from racial slurs being allowed in group homes to religious biases in foster homes. Several participants also commented on the language barriers that occur between caseworkers and Spanish-speaking families.

Foster parents are rarely informed about or instructed in culture-specific care. An adoption specialist with Black Family and Children's Services gave the example of two African American children, an infant and two-year-old, who were placed with white foster parents. The caseworker noticed the mother needed culture-specific help but didn't feel qualified to give it. She asked the private agency specialist to come into the home and teach the mother how to care for the childrens' hair, where to buy children's books with emphasis on their cultural heritage, and similar activities. "I think diversity training should start at the DES case manager level," she said "because then it would be constantly reinforced throughout the child's stay in the system."

System reform must recognize that foster parents are the best friends the state and abused children have. They should be treated with attention, resources, and respect. Then perhaps we will have foster parents waiting for available children, instead of the other way

"somewhere along the line, foster parents got put at the bottom of DES's totem pole. Foster parents don't know what's going on and are mostly in a state of shock. There should be beginning, intermediate, and advanced training for foster parents and lots more support." - Foster parent of 35 years

PEOPLE RECOMMEN

- Expand the Foster Parents Support Project statewide and provide permanent funding.
- Provide resources to foster parents so they can succeed.
- Raise the foster care reimbursement rate to a sufficient level.
- Offer more and better training for foster parents.
- Allow certified adoptive parents to provide respite care for foster parents as one possible solution to filling the serious shortage of respite care providers. Currently, individuals offering respite care to foster parents must be foster care licensed.
- Make foster care benefits equally available to guardian relatives.
- ✓ Merge into one process the foster care licensing and adoptive certification processes, which are now separate, causing great delays and much duplication of effort.
- Make changes to caseworker loads so that foster and adoptive families are being contacted as mandated by current poli-
- Provide a packet of culture-specific guidelines to new foster parents who are receiving a child of a different ethnicity than Inform all new foster parents about the CASA program.
- Promote and inform foster parents about the statewide association that advocates for their rights and the rights of their their own.
- ✓ Have CPS recruit and train additional foster homes within each CPS district so that no child in foster care lives outside his or her own county.
- Recruit and train more therapeutically-licensed foster homes because children are entering the system with more complex problems.
- ✓ Improve coordination and caseworker equity between the Division of Developmental Disabilities and CPS so that children with special needs are treated equally.

Give caseworkers the support

The child welfare system is only as workers who are guided by it. But for responsive, nurturing, and reliable as the policy that drives it and the case-people it exists to serve. that conflict with meetthemselves in a system driven by many factors CPS caseworkers find ing the needs of the a variety of reasons, recruiting and maintaining a profession-Caseworkers, often the target of blame comes and you begin to have difficulty ask. The work can be heartwrenching, overwhelming case loads, noncompetitive salaries, and less control over out-Being a CPS caseworker is no easy when the system fails, acknowledge it dangerous, and relentlessly stressful. can be thankless as well. Add to that al and skilled work force.

Despite the problems, we must not overlook the fact that CPS caseworkers and neglect between June 1996 and June 1997 and they offered continuous care received over 38,000 reports of abuse to some 6,000 children removed from and children caught in the provide personal contact Day in and day out, they birth and foster families their troubled families. and assistance to both WORKS

WHAT

ment, prove that the rewards of helping children and families still outweigh the other painful circumstances. There are through their persistence and commitgrip of poverty, abuse, violence, and many dedicated professionals who, their jobs more effectively. Some forum tions, praised caseworkers but demandlighten their load and help them to do Forum testimony, with few exceped changes in the system that would participants described positive steps that are being taken to assist CPS in both recruitment and training.

is resulting in more and better qualifed reatment have increased more than 77% ship with Arizona State University that ices. In the 1980s, responding to a lack with social work degrees, who now num-1994, CPS has not been able to keep up workers. Because reports of child mal-CPS has formed a unique partnern Arizona since 1987, and children in out-of-home care has grown 45% since ments for child welfare positions. This with the demand for child welfare serhas resulted in a decrease in workers tions, DES eliminated degree requireof qualified candidates for CPS posiber only 24% of caseworkers.

ormed a partnership with the Arizona he school's MSW program (with a spe-In an attempt to solve this devolu-State University School of Social Work, rialization in child welfare) are eligible where students registered full-time in tion of educational standards, DES coordinate a decent level of care for the child. The system is so dysfunctional now that caseworkers - Executive director, social services agency "It's a horrible thing to have to pull children from their home, even if the parents are bad parents. But it had to be easier when I at least knew the home the child was going to and I could have little control over what happens to that child."

16

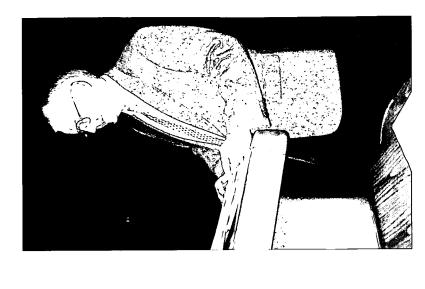

they need

work for CPS for a minimum of 18 months taneously lessening recruitment pressures. gram, begun in 1991, supported with state the CPS standards once again, while simulsince. The stipend programs help to raise and federal funds, has more than tripled exchange for monthly stipend payments upon graduation. Enrollment in the proand tuition support, students agree to for a variety of stipend programs. In family-centered, trains to best practices, is other states. It now includes case planning for children who are in substance-abusing workers with intensely focused internal endorsed by the Child Welfare League of CPS has also been working hard to training programs. The Case Manager diversity competence, both issues that make up for the decrease in degreed study, has recently been updated. It is Core Training, now 22 days of intense families and has a module on cultural America, and is being delivered in 33 and a new sexual abuse awareness course. managers is being considered for developwere raised by forum participants. There are various advanced trainings available A curriculum that includes on-the-job mentoring and coaching for new case due respect and fully supported, the child welfare system will continue to falter, and agreed that until the system itself is corconditions for children and families will rected so that these workers are shown Most people who interact with the spoke highly of their commitment but child welfare system and caseworkers likely stagnate or worsen.

Retired CPS Manager

and their families. They need administrative support and respect for an extremely difficult workers who stay do so because of their heartfelt and bone-deep commitment to children job — respect from the public, the courts, and the legislature."

"Staff retention is a very serious problem at CPS. An internal ACYF study showed that the

Give caseworkers the support they need child abuse and neglect has risen 29%. In 1997, a staggering number of cases of Since 1991, the rate of reports of child abuse were reported — over substance abuse, and poverty stagnates or child abuse increase. worsens, violence, 38,000. It is predictable that as But despite an population and a growing economy, state funding for the child welfare system has remained fairly level even as caseloads exploding surge in developed a "case weighting" system that measures the capacity of workers to han-Caseworkers are overworked. The this tool, current findings indicate case-Department of Economic Security has adjustments may need to be made to dle their assigned cases. Although reasonably handle, and some units meaworkers carry more work than they can sure 40% over capacity.

Caseworker turnover is unacceptably high. The

WHAT

turnover rate for CPS underestimate of the year. This is a severe specialists is 21% up again from last actually experience turnover families DOESN'1 ferred or have been promoted within DES account CPS specialists who have transor have left their job for another within difficulty in maintaining a professional state service. In general, there is great because this rate does not take into and skilled Child Protective Services work force, not only in Arizona, but nationwide.

considered competitive. A 1996 DES CPS caseworker salaries are not ers do not receive raises based on experipublic employees in Arizona, caseworkmaking slightly more than novice workence and length of service. This results salaries paid to juvenile probation offisocial workers in Arizona. Unlike other cers, school social workers, or hospital in staff with 10-12 years of experience study shows CPS salaries lower than care for children with disabling disorders tices across DES units. Caseworkers who Some forum attendees also pointed ments and initial salaries are lower and counterparts, their educational requirethey receive no paid continuing educaout the inconsistency of staffing prac-(DDD) often have equally difficult and complex cases. Yet, unlike their CPS tional opportunities.

It wasn't about my computer. It's about manpower. They don't have enough manpower and I can "It's about getting more manpower and not six months to a year from now but yesterday. When I worked for CPS they said 'we'll get you a new computer or a new desk.' It wasn't about my desk. Former CPS caseworker speak for almost every unit out there. They are totally overwhelmed."

1997 Child Welfare Forums

THE PEOPLE RECOMMEND

tem the attention and support they need.

social work positions, I've seen a

"I have to tell you since the late 1970s when Child Protective services declassified their overworked, undertrained, and underpaid.

echoed repeatedly that caseworkers are

Forum participants, many of whom work with CPS caseworkers every day, to investigate 100% of child abuse reports CPS itself acknowledged that their failure was due to lack of staff resources.

 Continually train CPS case managers in cultural sensiand foster and adoptive families as to how to best handle tivity so that they can more effectively prepare children cross-cultural placements.

lies in the child welfare system."

that they are providing to fami-

decline in the quality of care gradual deterioration and social services agency

Allow private agencies to provide ongoing case management instead of CPS. Expand CPS training to include on-the-job mentoring salaries and continuing education opportunities between Examine consistency of staffing practices including CPS and Developmental Disability caseworkers. "I feel sorry for CPS caseworkers. On my way over here today, I stopped at one of - Contract consultant the CPS offices to meet with two caseworkers who were there last week but they're gone this week. Yesterday, I talked to a supervisor and she said 'I feel absolutely

 Hire enough caseworkers to investigate all reports, and give every child, parent, and adult in the child welfare sys-

✓ Fund the system so that caseworkers can do their jobs

Raise the qualification standards of CPS caseworkers and pay them accordingly.

and coaching for new case managers.

Children's Action Alliance

GIVE EVERY Waiting child a safe, session is expected to produce more posexpedite the court process for dependent children and, when necessary, terminate parental rights. This year's legislative State law was revised last year to itive changes with the Project described earlistatewide adoption of er. It is hoped that the Model Court

WORKS WHAT children -either returning them home or will speed the permanent placement of moving them into adoptive homes. these judicial reforms that deserves our full attention.

children in care with case plans for adop-A most serious problem, however, is homes to accept the children who are tion, while there were only 125 homes 1997, there were approximately 1200 certified and available for placement. waiting. It doesn't do much good to speed the judicial process if there is nowhere for these children to go. In that there aren't enough adoptive

Barely recognizing the seriousness of this deficiency, the legislature in 1997

vices budget that helps families to adopt children with special needs. appropriated $100,000 in state funds to cut $2.1 million from the adoption serefforts. At the same time though, they DES to enhance adoption recruitment ducted in southern Arizona As we seek solutions model program being conto permanency for dependent children, there is a are legally free for adoption or have been will not return to their biological parents. and family advocates. The target backlog dren into permanent families when they Catholic Social Services, and community Pima County Families For Kids is a Foundation aimed at moving foster chilbetween Arizona's Children Association, in foster care more than two years with DES/ACYF, Pima County Juvenile Court, The project targets those children who adoption as their case plan goal. The project is a collaborative partnership project funded by the W. K. Kellogg he target population had been adopted. older children and children of color. As of September 30, 1997, 290 children in ncrease in the number of adoptions in Adoption recruitment efforts focus on population consists of 501 children. This contributed to the significant Jima County.

There were several elements imporant in their success:

- used to describe the children who need a vices they are likely to need that will probeginning of the project, data were gathter care system, and what was needed to nove them out. The data also have been children are, what kept them in the fos-1. The project is data driven. At the permanent home, to help identify famithose children in the target population, ered and used to understand who the and to identify the family support series who can best meet the needs of mote permanency.
 - track each child's progress The milestones were created based on national 2. They established milestones to tricts 1 and 3 involving 533 children. If there are only 125 licensed adoptive homes, where are we Contract consultant going to put these children? The lack of adoptive homes is the number one problem that I see for "In the first ten months of this year, I have already approved 334 cases for severance in Dischildren in our foster care system who cannot return home."

1997 Child Welfare Forums

nurturing, and permanent home

mants. They defined the steps on the path opinion and on Pima County key infor-

- Life books were created for children in the 3. They honored the child's experience. target population for recording memories that will be part of their identity for their - homes, and to conduct rigorous continuing 4. A cross-functional, team-coordinated children in the target population with concome fragmentation, to identify strengths and barriers related to finding permanent advocacy for children. They work in coopsistency in permanency planning, to overassessment process expedited permanency. and collaborative were created to provide Cross-functional teams that were diverse eration with the child's caseworker.
 - 5. Permanency family support services and grantmaking was used to provide services that either removed a barrier or supwere made available to both adoptive and ported stability and permanency for chilfoster families. The flexible use of funds dren in the target population.

services for children and families currently Established in 1995, the ICMP is a five-year agency Case Management Project (ICMP). to reduce duplication of case management pilot established by several state agencies tions with no formal interagency collaborvice model often results in a child having agency involvement. The traditional seraion. A promising solution is the Intermultiple case managers at multiple loca-Another serious problem is what occurs for a child who has multiple served by multiple agencies.

results are compiled from the ICMP pilot, it policies and procedures and have authority multiple services across agencies for which needs of all family members. As evaluation family. Case managers are cross-trained in the way for comprehensive system reform. case manager in a single location for each to provide services for DES, ComCare, the s hoped that this service model will lead and the Arizona Department of Juvenile Maricopa County Juvenile Court Center, Corrections. Case managers coordinate In the ICMP model, there is a single a child or family is eligible to meet the ple themselves, a real success. They admire (AYAP), established by DES for teenage foster children, is, according to the young peotheir caseworkers and appreciate the counseling and individual attention that they receive on their journey to adulthood.

The Arizona Young Adult Program

however, they said the CPS system failed to explain their rights to them, why they were in the system, shuffled them from home to home, kept changing caseworkers, and pro-Before I only knew that I was a 'foster child.' denied access to their case files, and felt in some cases that they were "automatically" vided poor quality counseling. They were saying, "There's a big difference between nedicated. One youth summed it up by Before they officially entered AYAP being in AYAP and what happens prior. AYAP educates us about the system."

posed of teens in foster care, recruits foster nomes for teens, provides feedback to DES recommendations regarding services for on the quality of foster care, and makes The Advisory Board of AYAP, comeens in foster care.

- CEO, private social service agency seeking dollars to support the continuation of the program. It is our goal to expand it throughout

"Families for Kids is a success story. We feel so strongly about this process that we are actively

1997 Child Welfare Forums

Children's Action Alliance

the state of Arizona."

73

Children's Action Alliance

Give every child a safe, nurturing, and permanent home more troubled. Because the primary sysproblems in the family might well have Children are entering the system tem of child protection is weak, the

from the home. This' means that children who enter the sysbefore the child is gone on for some finally removed length of time care needs. In order to give every child a tem now are more severely disturbed. A child welfare system have mental health adequate and appropriate services must representative from the Arizona Center safe, nurturing, and permanent home, for Disability Law cited evidence that about 60% of children who are in the be available.

dependent children are uncoordinated, underfunded, and often too little, too Behavioral health services for situation with her five-year-old child who late. A foster/adopt mother described a had been severely abused as an infant. This child's allowable treatment as designed by the counioral health authority, approved psychiatrist utes a month with an consisted of 15 minty's regional behav-

or nurse practitioner.

WORK

child. This occurred after the mother had to inadequate mental health services, he After the child's medication lapsed due attempted to strangle a neighborhood been fighting for appropriate care for four years.

complex over time, she feels it is now an because cases have become increasingly One foster parent with a lifetime of distinguish between children who have obligation of the foster care system to foster care experience testified that that come into the system severely mensays, "we must establish a continuity of emotional problems that will heal with time and proper care and the children care." She related the following story: ally ill. Before that can be done, she me about it until I had him for two weeks, a home and don't warn the foster parents problem pushed from home to home, parand the caseworker seemingly overlooked ent to foster parent and back again, evenmore, and then you have more and more it. These children, when you put them in attachment disorders. Without continuity or nine years. The former foster parent "I had a child in my home one time even though he had been in the system who was schizophrenic and no one told what the issues are, have to be moved of care, a child with a mild emotional 'ually becomes mentally ill."

"I think in our zeal to make quick decisions we need to make sure we're not creating a group of legal orphans. I can't tell you how many kids there are whose parental rights have been terminated and yet they're still sitting in a foster howe without a permanent home. What have we given these that's any better?"

Foster care review board member is when it comes to helping both the child transitions. One foster/adopt parent testiparticipants decried how cold the system Children experience multiple transiand the foster/adopt parents cope with tions that are often inhumane. Several going to help you through this transition." these children should have the benefit of at happens next,' and 'here is someone who is from home is traumatic enough but — I've received [foster] kids in my home dragging least being told 'this is why,' 'this is what "I am concerned about how children are moved. They're not informed about what's happening to them. Being taken their clothes in a black garbage bag — dren's shelter observes children in transi-The residential coordinator of a chiltion on a daily basis. She reported:

removed from homes experience multiple "Despite all our best efforts, children dren are so hard to deal with that they are transitions. Transitions are traumatic, and multiple transitions can be extremely damfor normal children, attachment problems the ones who are moved most often. Even caregiver is a major factor in attachment disorder, and attachment-disordered chiltions, so very common in our system, can arise with multiple placements. The emotional abuse resulting from poor transiaging to the child. Loss of the primary and must be stopped."

staggering 44% of of the state's 6,000 foster children have been in care for at least considerably longer than is acceptable. A tive parents. More children are entering There are simply not enough adoptwo years and some a great deal longer the system and more are staying there than that.

trapped in the system. Several attendees addressed the issue of children of color Children of color are particularly who are disproportionately represented in government indicates that there are 1,200 placement and are less likely to be adopted. DES' most recent report to the federal often their entire childhoods. Nearly 50% children with a case plan of adoption. Of nore likely to get caught in it for years, of the children in out-of-home care are the child welfare system and are much children of color. They wait longer for these, 720 are children of color, yet only 18 ethdiverse homes are availace or ethnicity, target-While the law prohibits delaying a child's adopable for placement on iive placement due to the adoption registry. ed recruitment is pernically and culturally

"The biggest problem in the child welfare system is the huge mismatch between services that are needed and the services that are available."

64 U

Give every child a safe, nurturing, and permanent home

There is also a serious breakdown in our state's capacity to match adoptive children with adoptive parents. One forum participant testified that she and her husband and her husband were certified and licensed as adoptive parents in Arizona for an entire year without one word or one phone call from the state.

word or one phone call from the state.

They finally gave up and went through a private agency seeking a child available for adoption. They recently adopted a second child from the state of Colorado that utilizes an aggressive recruitment strategy on the Internet. This story was particularly sad since this family is African American and the need for ethnic adoptive families is so urgent in Ari-

WHAT DOESN'T cient. The Independent Living Program has been designed by the state for these young people to help get them out on their own, but several foster parents have pointed out that these kids need ongoing family stability and more emotional support than the average young

The lack of permanency sends older children into adulthood without any family. If older children languish in the system for several years, which is several years, which is likely due to their age, they find themselves turning 18 without a permanent family or a stable base of support when social and legal custom expects them to now be self-suffi-

"Between 1992 and 1996, 187 children died because of abuse or neglect. Some of these deaths known to Child Protective Services. Whenever a child dies, it touches all of us. Whenever a child occurred while the child was in foster care. Some of the deaths occurred when the children were dies who is known to our system asking for intervention, we have all failed." - Superior Court Commissioner

THE PEOPLE RECOMMEN

- Expand Families for Kids statewide and make it the model for permanency planning and adoption.
- Adopt a proactive approach to recruiting adoptive parents.
- Establish a standard operating procedure that will identify siblings who come into foster care or are being considered for adoption and then do everything humanly possible to keep them together.
- Begin the severance process (termination of parental rights) earlier in case planning and move it faster.
- ✓ Make adoption certification easier.
- Focus more on foster parents who are willing to adopt and nurture them along.
- Establish a continuity of care for children particularly regarding their mental health
- Fund children's behavioral health services so that they can fully meet the needs of the children and families they serve.
- Mandate that there be a counseling process for foster children to understand their lives and what's happening to them, particularly before and after transitions.
- ✓ Begin permanency or concurrent case planning with the first placement in cases where there is a long history of family abuse.
- Consider making open adoption available in Arizona (if the child is willing, scheduled visitation is allowed with the birth parents).
- Give older dependent children, prior to adoption, the right to know where their birth parents are and, in certain cases, the right to communicate with them.
- Provide mentors for children in foster care.
- Allow foster teens to mentor other teens and children in care.

Children's Action Alliance

Forum participants make the case

There is a serious lack of interagency coordination. CASAs and FCRB members reported that the system is confusing, with too many different ways to get help or be rejected for services. It is frustrating for all involved and the child too often "falls between the Agency workers also pointed to confidentiality rules as a major barrier to cooperation. The director of a crisis shelter and former CPS caseworker pointed out that "We cannot serve our children unless we are sharing information about their histories, about what's happening with them now, and what they're going to need in the future, and we're not doing that." A survey respondent said that "territorial attitudes among agencies inhibit prompt response to children's needs and it must stop now."

The 1997 CASA of the Year reported that CASAs can get reports such as mental health records that caseworkers cannot and vice versa. In one case, she was denied access to an FBI report. The caseworker, who did have access, volunteered to request it. The report showed that the individual about to be awarded custody of a dependent child was previously involved in a double homicide and rob-system. The foster care process begins to clogged, shelters get overloaded, funding entire system of authority, decision makfalls short in the face of demand — the fail, children get backlogged in the legal down. Children become ping-pong balls system and begin to experience greater and duplicative. When the response to child abuse is weak, we see aggravated ing, and allocation of resources breaks stress in all areas of the child welfare System services are fragmented between parents, the courts, shelters, foster parents, schools, doctors, case emotional instability, the courts get managers, and judges.

Repeatedly we heard that the system is fragmented to the point of dysfunction and if we could somehow capture the waste of duplicated and overlapping services, there may be enough resources for every program, every family, every

The following is an excerpted case history read by a court-appointed special advocate (CASA) about a child in his

"The child is a bright and healthy 11-year-old with above average intelligence. However, after 8 years of repeated moves and 11 placement changes, the child has begun exhibiting psychological distress and depression for which we now prescribe medication. Unfortunately with the constant change of doctors and caregivers, medication is inconsistent and files are incomplete. Due to erratic and constantly changing placements, it has been reported that on more than one occasion, medication was either forgotten

 Court-appointed special advocate neglect by the system continues and the brief critical period of childhood is lost. The fact of the matter is the system just does not work. Not only are our children trapped but so are the good "With repeated reassignments, problems go away for everybody but the child. Abuse and people attempting to work in and run that system."

6

1997 Child Welfare Forums

27 or system reform

appointed attorney, a guardian ad litem, a ducting six-month reviews, CPS conducting different ComCare case managers, and six aide, a psychiatrist, a psychologist, and up With no one in charge, overlapping duties, different psychiatrists, each with new and manager, a CPS case supervisor, a family consistency, in the past three years alone, hearings, Foster Care Review Boards conperiodic staffings that include professionfrom adverse side effects, including withdiffering opinions regarding medication. and inconsistency, no one is accountable Butatran, Zoloft, and Imipramine. As for als and case staff. The child has a courtconducting six-month report and review four different CPS case managers, three drawal symptoms. Medications over the until recently a ComCare case manager past three years have included various staffing and oversight, we have judges and a ComCare case supervisor. As for or mixed up and the child has suffered the child has had five different judges, CASA, a surrogate parent, a CPS case doses of Ritalin, Dexedrine, Elavil,

THE PEOPLE RECOMMEND

- child and family from the moment they enter the child welfare system to the point when they Establish one case manager, with decision-making authority, to oversee all services to a meet a set of criteria that measures health and stability.
- vice provision, with no duplication or gaps in service, through DES, DHS, AHCCCS, DOE and ADJC. Provide continuity of services to children and families with the mission of high-quality ser-
- Combine funding for children in the child welfare system. Eliminate the lack of integrated services that is the result of categorical funding and have the funding "follow the child."
- Encourage and establish coordination and collaboration between systems, agencies, and staffs, both public and private.
- Provide CASAs, CPS caseworkers, and providers with access to all records, including criminal and mental health data.
- ✓ Have DES remove unnecessary confidentiality barriers with providers and the community.
- Establish clear and understandable public policy concerning dependent children. Armed with a strong public statement and reliable funding, all parties from caseworkers to agency heads can identify and carry out what is expected of them.
- Use conclusions and recommendations of past studies and reports in the development of Arizona public policy.
- Measure our success not by the number of children moving through the system but rather they are performing well in school, if they are ready to enter the work world — successful outby whether they continue to live with their families, whether they have achieved stability, if comes for children, families, and the community.
- Fight poverty. Move parents off welfare by helping them, not punishing them.

Melinda Young-Imes

Forum Panelists

of our purpose and who are willing to invest in the capacity of forum process, and to our funders who recognize the gravity brought a wealth of knowledge and wisdom to this public Special thanks to our facilitators and panelists who our community to do the right thing for our children.

child welfare system reform that is efficient, sensible, cost-You can all be assured that your feedback will play an important part in our evolving effort to create a model for effective, and dedicated to placing children and their best interests first.

Arizona Schools for the Deaf and Blind October 28, 1997

Facilitator	Participants	Dawn Swink
Boyd Dover	Barbara Anderson	Tommie Thomas
The Providence	Dr. Anna Binkiewicz	Bianca Varelas
Corporation	Maria Bravo	Honorable Nanette
Panelists	Fred Chaffee	Warner
Karen Abman	Lyn Cheever
Arizona's Children	Juanita Chrysanthou
Association	Mary Dryden
Dowlowe Dowlessing	Sharon Fultz
Dariene Dankowski	Jeannette Gallagher
Open Inn	Kristine Hanson
Jaime Gutierrez	Ann Haralambie
University of	Charlotte Keller
Arizona	Jeanne Landdeck-
Sue Krahe-Eggleston	Sisco
Our Town Family	Det. Marilyn Malone

Kyrene Elementary School District November 6, 1997

Participants	Carol Ainley	Evelyn Carson	Rudy Carver	Natalie Cawood	Nancy Cowperthwait	Joan Drydyk	Barbara Griffin	Yvonne Mannion	Marsha Porter	Honorable Maurice Portley	Claire Rhodes	Anne Ronan	Dr. Marc Rubin	Margaret Soberg	Michelle VanKilsdonk	Commissioner Penny Willrich
Facilitator	Jacque Steiner	Chair, CAA Child Welfare	Committee	Panelists	David Arrow	Attorney-At-Law	, charit in Company	Christ Fickas	Critia Crisis Center	East valley	Natalie Miles-Thompson	Parents Anonymous	Dr. Sylvia Strickland	Pediatrician,	Maricopa Medical Center

Lana Mitchell

and Participants

Prescott City Council Chambers November 13, 1997

Barbara J. Polk Facilitator

West Yavapai Children's Carl Brown Panelists Council

West Yavapai Children's Governor's Division for Bev Ogden Children Council

Chair, CAA Child Welfare Prevent Child Abuse Jacque Steiner Becky Ruffner

Committee

Kathy Davidson Moore Laurel Taylor Fitzhugh Lt. Kathy McLaughlin Honorable Janis A. Paula Makowsky Lois Thompson Morissa Miller Robin Frielich Dottie Morris Gordon Glau Sterling

Glendale City Council Chambers December 2, 1997

Margarita Aguilar Participants Jacque Steiner Facilitator

Rachael Rodriguez

Welfare Committee Chair, CAA Child

Honorable Robert M.

Brutinel

Participants Patsi Beaven Panelists

Christian Family Kay Ekstrom Care Agency

Berta Carbajal Charlie Brown

Bonnie Cohn

Parents Anonymous & AZ for Kids Chair Tom Lolos

David Frieberg

Crisis Nursery, Inc. Marsha Porter

Maria Hoffman Susan Jernigan

Celia Hodges

im Hart

Maricopa County Alberta Stone

Mike Matcha

Public Defenders

Dr. Chris Monaco Connie Phillips

Det. John Piccarreta Donald Reis

Daryl L. Bell-Greenstreet im & Mary Barnard Stephen Allen Ioan Crosby

> Evelyn Smith Daryle Smith

> > Fernando Barrera

Janet Weiss

Mary Dryden Adam Glaser

Vera Woodard

Alissa Blackwell

Ben Benhoff

Carole Brazsky

Brenda Goldsmith Eva Hamant

Kristine Hanson Vicky Hinkle Kathryne Hughes Stephanie Jakes

Liz Jones

Anne Kane

Dr. James Mick David Marcy

Marilyn Neibergall Angela Randon

Dr. Christina Risley-Curtiss Jane Schorzman

James L. Treece Charity Torrez

Ioan Williams Carla Woyak

ARIZONA YOUNG ADULT PROGRAM

r.w.	M.C.	R.O.
S.S.	D.K.	E.W.

(D)

ACTION ALLIANCE CHILDREN'S

CHILD WELFARE COMMITTEE

AZ FOR KIDS STEERING COMMITTEE

Carol Poore Barbara J. Polk, Vice-Chair Jacque Steiner, Chair

Marsha Porter

Mary Lou Quintana Anne Ronan

Karen Abman Anna Arnold David Arrow

Becky Ruffner

Margaret Soberg

Sylvia Strickland, M.D.

Darlene Dankowski Beverly Crawford

Trish Zara

Beth Rosenberg CAA Staff

Jackie Flowers

Janet Garcia

Jim Hart

Carol Hurtt

Kim Kelly

Kay Ekstrom Chris Fickas

Boyd Dover

Paula Wright

Linda Mazon-Gutierrez

Rachel Oesterle

Bev Ogden

Sue Krahe-Eggleston

Thomas Lolos

Cathryn Lore

Natalie Miles-Thompson Lynda Pederson fill Lindstrom Barbara Polk

Tom Lolos, Chair

Jackie Flowers, Founder Linda Bednarek

Sarah Berry Ray Bloyed

Berta Carbajal

Barbara Hanigsberg Evelyn Carson

Burton Solomon

ල

CHILDREN'S ACTION ALLIANCE

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Elizabeth Hernandez McNamee The Honorable Jane Dee Hull Dan Schweiker, President Patricia Montiel Overall Derrick Johnson Armando Flores Penny Emerson Betty H. Fairfax Nadine Mathis Eldon Kramer David Bodney Nora Hannah Peggy Bilsten David Howell Barbara Polk Kay Ekstrom Amy Carlile Steven Lynn Win Holden Neal Kurn

Executive Director Carol Kamin

Carolyn Warner

Jacque Steiner

Steve Roman

Jerry M. Ward

CHILDREN'S ACTION ALLIANCE

4001 North Third Street, Suite 160 Phoenix. Arizona 85012 (602) 266-0707 • fax (602) 263-8792 E-mail: caa@azchildren.org

Internet: www.azchildren.org

Southern Arizona Office 3443 North Campbell Avenue, Suite 107 Tucson, Arizona 85719

(520) 795-4199 • fax (520) 795-5499

U.S. Department of Education

Office of Educational Research and Improvement (OERI)
National Library of Education (NLE)
Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC)

NOTICE

Reproduction Basis

- This document is covered by a signed "Reproduction Release (Blanket)" form (on file within the ERIC system), encompassing all or classes of documents from its source organization and, therefore, does not require a "Specific Document" Release form.
- This document is Federally-funded, or carries its own permission to reproduce, or is otherwise in the public domain and, therefore, may be reproduced by ERIC without a signed Reproduction Release form (either "Specific Document" or "Blanket").

EFF-089 (3/2000)

